"A Genealogical Tree of the Family of Swinton of that Ilk": This tree, showing both male and female lines covers the mainline family of Swinton's in Scotland and is estimated as having been produced in the late 1800's or early 1900's. The history of the origin of this tree is unknown. The photocopy given to me in the early 1980's is of a very poor quality and has been touched up wherever the information was positively recognisable. Original copies of this chart are in the possession of John Walter Swinton of Calgary, Alberta, Canada, the 35th Head of the family and Ernest Phillip Antill Swinton of Malua Bay, NSW, Australia, a descendant of Captain Edward George Swinton.

"Swinton of that Ilk": This magnificent tree shows the proven male lines of descent of the mainline Swinton family of Scotland. Also shown are the Heraldic arms of the various Swinton generations and families, including those arms established through marriage and the arms of those families with whom marriage took place. In 1921, John R. Sutherland was commissioned to produce this tree by George Sitwell Campbell Swinton of 'Kimmerghame', Duns, Scotland while he was Lord Lyon, King of Arms, Edinburgh, Scotland. The original is in full colour and is at 'Kimmerghame'. In c.1989 Major-General, Sir John Swinton, grandson of the originator, and current head of the Campbell-Swinton branch of the family had the plaque containing the genealogy and arms taken down, and he then commissioned the addition of the six earliest generations that had then been proven.

"Descent of the mainline Swinton family from their earliest Eadulfing ancestors": This tree, created by Gary R.R. Swinton for the Swinton Family Society, shows the descent of the main family of Swintons'. Their origin was in Bernicia and Diera, or Northumbria, which later became Northumberland, a region that stretched from the Firth of Forth in the north down to the River Humber in the south. The family acted in varying capacities over the region, from Chieftain or Overlord, High Reve to numerous Earls of Northumberland, wielding their power from the fortress castle of Bamberg on the coast. During later centuries many members of the family held high military rank in the service of the monarchs, in the parliaments of Scotland and the United Kingdom. The family has survived the times of borderland conflict between the English and the Scots, rising again and again from the destruction inflicted on this lowland region. During the 1700 and 1800's many members of the family were employed with the "Honourable East India Company". Honour has been attached to many of this family like Sir Ernest Dunlop Swinton for his part in the development of the military tank. A little known fact concerns Captain Samuel Swinton, husband of Félicité Jean le Febre. Baroness Orczy, when she wrote "The Scarlet Pimpernel" in 1905 loosely based the story of the hero, Sir Percy Blakeney, on the life Samuel in France during the French Revolution where, with his wife they assisted in the escape by some of the nobility who were in danger of going to the guillotine. This tree is probably the most complete record of the main Swinton family in existence. From these roots the family has spread out across the world and it is to this family that all the modern Swinton branches seek to find their roots.

The history of this family and that of James Duncan and Ann Speid [see DUNCAN: Chart 1] were always very much entwined. In Scotland Robert had been mistakenly thought to be involved in some capacity on the Firth of Fourth Bridge construction. Both families had a long association with the West Melbourne Gas Works, later the Gas and Fuel Corporation of Victoria. He was originally bought out to Melbourne to build the first gas retort for the company and then he remained in their employment.

Some of his children and descendants have also held employment there. Roberts first 'Duncan' grand-daughter, Elizabeth Beatrice Duncan was to marry into the Warrnambool Swinton family (see SWINTON: Chart 4A), reestablishing a union between the two Swinton families. Sequence: SWINTON: Chart 4 → 4B.

"Contains details of the Reeves of Warrnambool, Victoria, Australia and their ancestral families of Jeffares, Phelps, Wilcocks, Greer and Vaughan": This family had its origins in Ireland and through the Greer line has a long history that can be traced back to the early Scottish monarchs. The Vaughan family, from Dublin, Ireland, have consistently been involved with the church. The Reeves family which established itself in Victoria, Australia divided into two distinct lines. One remained in Victoria settling at Clifton Springs near Geelong, Victoria and then in the Western District at Hamilton and later at Warrnambool. The Warrnambool family started Reeves Cordials, known widely in the District and operated by three generations of the family before being sold. The other branch crossed the Tasman Sea to New Zealand establishing a considerable family. See sub-charts REEVES: Charts 2 & 3, ARNOLD: Chart 1, CRESSWELL: Chart 1, ELLIS: Chart 1, GREER: Chart 1, JEFFARES: Chart 1, MUNTZ: Chart 1 and SWINTON: Chart 4A.2.

"Lines of descent of the Crowns of the Saxon Invaders of Britain and their Kingdoms": This chart bears little relationship to the other charts in this volume though it does show where the mainline Swinton family came into being. It was an attempt to show the descent of power over the ruling of Northumberland through the early ages, along with the influence, and relationships with the other kingdoms of Britain, from Vortigern's invasion of Kent to Athelstan, 1st King of England. It also shows the descent of the 'Bretwalda' (a term meaning the king of all England, though rarely, if ever, was their control really over all England), from Ælla, King of Sussex, Bretwalda I, c 480AD to Egbert, King of Wessex, Bretwalda VIII (800-836AD). The descent of the Swinton family is generally accepted as coming through the line from Eadulf 'the Ealdorman' (705AD), although it is not proven. It could be assumed that for Eadulf to have held the rank and status that he did, he was descended from these Northumbrian Kings. Sequence: ROYAL LINES: Chart 1 → SWINTON: Chart 1C, Sheet 1.
